APPA 2019 WINTER TRAINING INSTITUTE

MARCH 10-13, 2019

A Nation in Crisis: Addressing Substance Abuse and Behavioral Health in Our Community

Both substance abuse and behavioral health disorders are having a profound impact on community corrections. The rising use of intravenous drugs, America's fight against the opioid epidemic, introduction of new deadly synthetic drugs, and the rapidly changing laws governing the use of marijuana are met by practitioners daily. Simultaneously, the severity of behavioral health issues facing justice-involved individuals and the challenges to identify comprehensive and integrative strategies to address them seem daunting. During the 2019 Winter Training Institute of the American Probation and Parole Association, participants will be provided with opportunities to hear from subject-matter specialists who will address these problems and the intersection between community corrections, treatment, behavioral health, and public health in an effort to promote evidence-based advances through both traditional and non-traditional partnerships.

The American Probation and Parole Association is pleased to issue a Call for Presenters for the 2019 Winter Training Institute March 10-13, 2019 in Miami, Florida. The underlying goal of this training institute is to provide participants with workshop opportunities that emphasize skill-building, an increase in relevant competencies, and enhancing overall career development. Preference will be given to workshop proposals that include activities, audience participation, practicing new skills, significant knowledge enhancement, and new research for the field of community corrections. Institute participants include community corrections professionals in the following fields: pretrial, probation, juvenile and adult parole, reentry service, program and treatment providers, judiciary, criminal justice researchers and educators, and others who are interested in the industry.
